THE

UNK WEED!

REMEDY

—OR—

OREGON

RHEUMATIC CURE.

HISTORY.

This Remedy is composed of the active principle of the Unk Weed—Env. Thaspium Cordatum Origins Lat.—Indigenous to Oregon Grows most abundantly and perfectly in Washington Co

PROPERTIES, ETC.

It contains an ACTIVE VOLATILE Principle, extracted by Ether, and a bitter TONIC Principle soluble in Alcohol.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.

It is the most sure and speedy cure for

Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout and Rheumatic Pains of all kinds

That was ever introduced in the Materia Medica. The UNK WEED REMEDY, as prepared by us, in consequence of the existing bitter principle, possesses the necessary virtue of being a Powerful Tonic.

Promoting the Appetite and Invigorating the whole Digestive Apparatus, thus building up and strengthening the system, while at the same time the volatile principle being absorbed in the blood, acts specifically on the Rheumatic Poison, removing it from the circulation and system

There are a few remedies known to the Medical Profession which will remove the Rheumatic Poison from the blood, but whose action is so powerful in depressing the system of the already enfeebled rheumatic patient, that their use has to be abandoned before specific effects are obtainable, hence the want of success in treating this prevalent and in consequence heretofore incurable disease

Unlike these Medicines, already known, the UNK WEED REMEDY, though producing as powerful and as active effects on the blood and system in removing the Rheumatic Poison, also possesses a strong TONIC and recuperating element which admits of its continued use even by the most delicate and debilitated. Thus we have the combination for the first time of these two necessary elements in one remedy, which accounts for its superior and never failing curative effects in

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER.

ITS EFFECT IS

MIRACULOUS.

IT IS A PERFECT AND WONDERFUL article. Cures baldness. Makes hair grow. A better dressing than any 'oil or pomatum.' Softens brushes dry and wiry hair into Beautiful Silken Tresses. But, above all, the great wonder is the rapidity with which it restore GRAY HAIR TO ITS ORIGINAL COLOR

The whitest and worst looking hair resumes its youthful beauty by its use. It does not dye the hair, but strikes at the root and fills it with new life and coloring matter.

The first application will do good: you will see the NATURAL COLOR returning every day, and the old, gray, discolored appearance of the hair will be gone, giving place to lustrous shining and beautiful locks

Ask for Hall's Sicilian Hair Renewer; no other article is at all like it in effect.

See that each bottle has our private Government Stamp over the top of the bottle All others are imitations.

THE BRITISH COLONIST.

Thursday Morning, Feb 15, 1872

From Nanaimo to Alberni.

A few days ago we directed attention to the importance of opening overland communication between Nanaimo and Alberni; and in doing so we endeavored to present the advantages which such communication would offer in a commercial point of view, as well as for purposes of exploration and settlement. We have now to invite attention to another very important advantage. The reader will hardly need to be reminded of the comparitively numerous shipwrecks occurring on the West Coast not far from the poin indicated, Nor will it be thought necessary to dwell upon the harrowing details of the loss of the John Bright and the melancholy fate of all on board,-how the Captain and his wife and daughter survived the horrors of shipwreck only to meet a more terrible fate at the hands of ruthless savages—the daughter, it is still to be presumed, doomed to a life of captivity even worse than death by the scalping-knife! The reader need not be reminded that this community at the present moment await with no little anxiety, an inquiry into the circumstances attending a recent case of shipwreck in the same neighborhood, and the fate of a party of some twenty men supposed to have been left weeks at the mercy of the savages of that region. It is known that the H. M. S. Scout left on Monday for the scene of this disaster, and returned yesterday, having met with an accident in the Straits, on her way out. Meanwhile the shipwrecked party are helpless and without succor, and may all perish before they can be reached! But, what connection has this with the establishment of overland communication between Nanaimo and the West Coast? With such communication in existence frequent, intercourse would be kept up between the two points. The Indians would be constantly passing, white men would frequently visit the West Coast and would without doubt, ere long establish trading posts at various points on the coast. In this way, it would be impossible for a shipwrecked party to be at the mercy of savage Indians for weeks-possibly killed and so far decomposed as to defy identification before ever the disaster should become known to the authorities. But not only would marine disasters be made known at once. The rescued seamen could cross over in a single day to Nanaimo, where they would enjoy all the advantages of a civilized and prosperous community, and where they could take steamer or ship to wherever they might desire to go. Furthermore, the Indians on the West Coast, now the terror of the mariner, and living in a state of outlawry, would be brought within the influence of civilization and legal control, and would, therefore, cease to be dangerous. It will thus be seen that every consideration of commerce, exploration, settlement, civilization, and last, not least, humanity points to the importance of immediately connecting Nanaimo with the West Coast by means of a good trail or road. It scarcely falls within the range of our duty, it was no part of our present intention, to indicate any particular line to be followed. Yet it may not appear altogether out of place to suggest that, in the first instance, at least, the Nanoose road might be utilized for the purpose. There is little doubt that the Member for Nanaimo will succeed in getting the Nanoose road extended and improved this year; and, inasmuch as it would take the traveller a considerable distance on his way to the West Coast, as well as bring a most valuable agricultural settlement into more immediate connection with new markets, there would be presented a double object in taking advantage of that road, in great part all ready to hand. In view of all the interests and considerations presented in this and a former article upon the same subject, and knowing the earnestness with which these considerations have been personally urged upon the Executive by the Member for the District of Nanaimo, we venture to think that the Government will not hesitate to recommend to Parliament the expenditure necessary for the undertaking, and that the present year will see Nanaimo and Alberni connected by an overland road.

Customs Tariff and Road Tolls.

The public are aware that no returns having been received from the Electoral District of Kootenay, the Legislature will meet with that District unrepresented. What makes the matter still more provoking, the two gentlemen respecting whose election no doubt exists, are here, ready to do their duty. The writs for the Kootenay elections left here nearly four and a half months ago and it will be the duty either of the Government or of the Legislature to institute a rigid investigation into the circumstances which have kept these writs so long out. It is also known that the writ for the re-election of the Chief Commissioner of Lands & Works has not been returned and in all probability may not be returned for a fortnight or three weeks, even should that gentleman be so fortunate as to be elected by acclamation. In this instance the cause of delay is known. The writ was consigned to Her Majesty's mail-bags! Under these circumstances the Mainland, is, for the present at least, deprived of three votes! These three votes may mean defeat of the Canadian Tariff and retention of the Road Tolls! Should any proper and constitutional measure be presented by which the Kootenay members may be enabled to take seats respecting their claim to which no moral doubt exists, it is to be hoped that it will be adopted, as it is extremely undesirable, on general principles, that these seats should remain empty a day longer than can be avoided: and it is especially so in view of the two important questions forming the heading to the present remarks. Thirteen seats out of twenty-five was at best scant justice to the Mainland, with its widespreading territory and boundless resources; but to proceed to the business of the session with three out of these thirteen seats empty is a condition of things which every just and patriotic mind must desire to see avoided if there should be no insuperable difficulty in the way.

A PROCLAMATION.

J. F. And whereas it was doubtful, owing to the difficulty of communication at this season of the year and other causes, whether the Writ can be so returned by the said 15th instant.

And whereas it is expedient still further to extend the time for the return of the said Writ for the said Electoral District of Kootenay.

And whereas by Section 80 of the "Election Regulation Act, 1871," The Governor in Council is empowered to cause to be adopted such measures as may be necessary for removing any obstacle, or the doing of, or omission to do, any act of a technical or formal nature, by which, or by want of which, the due course of an election may be impeded.

NOW, KNOW YE, that for the purpose of giving the Returning Officers of the Electoral District of Kootenay further time to return the said Writ for the said Electoral District of Kootenay, the Governor in Council has extended the time for the return of the said Writ for the said Electoral District of Kootenay; and that the Writ for the said Electoral District of Kootenay shall be returned on or before the 15th day of March next; and the Returning Officers are to govern themselves accordingly.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, we have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Public Seal of Our said Province of British Columbia to be hereunto attached; Witness, the Honorable JOSEPH WILLIAM TRUTCH, Lieutenant Governor of Our said Province of British Columbia, in Our City of Victoria, in Our said Province, this Thirteenth day of February, in the year of Our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two, and in the thirty-fifth year of Our Reign.

By Command.

City Council.

WEDNESDAY, Feb 14, 1872.

Council met at 7.30 o'clock. Present.—His Worship the Mayor in the Chair, and Councillors Gowen, McMillan, Mitchell, Taylor and Robinson.

WATER SUPPLY.

The Council went into Committee of the Whole, the Mayor in the Chair, to consider the new Water Bill, a draft of which was sent in by the Solicitors to the Corporation. The Com. passed the bill in Com. and reported progress.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Communications from property-holders, representing the necessity for a 3-plank sidewalk on the south side of Yates between Blanchard and Vacouver streets. The clerk was instructed to notify property-holders to comply with prayer of petitioners.

Communication from Wm Williams, Contractor, asking permission to remove sidewalks, etc., adjoining the Wesleyan Church. Granted.

The Clerk and Coun. Gerow called attention to the dangerous state of the sidewalk on Yates street from Government to the Oriental Hotel. On motion the owner was notified to lay down a new sidewalk.

Account of C. Ball for blacksmith work, $10 75; of Thomas Cragie, labor, $2; of W. Wilson, repairing damages resulting from a Corporation blast, $5 75. Ordered paid.

Coun. Taylor explained that the Street Committee employed a man to blast a piece of rock near Capt. Starr's residence. He put in too much powder and part of the rock went through the roof of Capt. Starr's house He (the man) had learned his profession in Government employ, but not being perfect, he had been ordered back—to the chaingang (laughter)

AUDITOR'S REPORT.

His Worship read a communication from Mr. Holmes, the Auditor, complaining that it was impossible to make a satisfactory audit in consequence of the state of the Clerk's books.

The Clerk said he wanted instructions. By a resolution of the late Council he was instructed to commence a new ledger and balance it at the end of every financial year.

Coun. McMillan (Chairman of the Finance Committee) said the matter had been in the hands of the Auditor fifteen months. The Clerk had been instructed over and over again to prepare the books for audit and had not done so. He (Coun. McMillan) was tired of this work and demanded an explanation. He read a letter from the Auditor with respect to the accounts. The explanation of the Clerk he claimed was a quibble.

The Clerk—That is a gratuitous assumption.

Coun. McMillan—This Council has been trifled with from first to last and will no longer be balked in its investigation.

The Mayor read from the rules of order to show what the duties of clerk are.

Coun. Robinson—The resolution calls for the ledger to be balanced every year; but the ledger is not the cash book, which ought to be balanced every week. The Auditor has told me that the cash book has not even been added up for months.

The cash book was sent for and laid before the Council.

The Auditor was called in to point out the system of keeping the cash book. Mr Holmes said that until the cash-book is balanced in a proper manner no audit of the accounts could be made. He (Mr Holmes) had seen Mr Mallandaine who told him that he had rendered an account of road tax collections for 1870 which did not appear on the books.

Coun Robinson said a cash-book should be posted up so that one could strike a balance at once. That has not been done in this case.

Coun. McMillan—I never saw books in such a shape.

The Clerk—What do you do? You give one man three men's work to do.

Coun. McMillan gave notice of the following motion, which he said was a most unpleasant duty: "That unless the cash-book of the Council be posted and balanced by the Clerk to the satisfaction of the Auditor, so that he may be enabled to complete the work of auditing the Corporation accounts to the date agreed upon by the Council, I shall, at the next meeting of the Council move that the Clerk be suspended from his office, until such time as the audit aforesaid is completed and a report to that effect has been laid before the Council.

EDUCATIONAL.

The Council went into Committee of the Whole on educational arrears.

RETURN OF THE SCOUT DISABLED.—H.M.S Scout, which sailed hence on Monday for the scene of the wreck at Kyuket, returned yesterday afternoon. She reached a point a few miles this side the entrance of the Straits on Monday night, when a derangement of the rudder was discovered and the ship became almost unmanageable. The ship was put about and ran into Beechy Bay on Tuesday, when it was found necessary to come on to Esquimalt, which was done yesterday afternoon. The injury will be speedily repaired, and the ship will probably resume her voyage to-day.

ST. VALENTINE'S BALL.—A large and sociable company of ladies and gentlemen observed St. Valentine's day at Alhambra Hall in a grand ball. Capital music was supplied by the Victoria Brass Band, and the hours slipped rapidly and pleasantly away. The proceeds will be devoted to the purchase of new instruments by the band.

THE CABLE.—Nothing can be done towards the repair of the cable until the weather becomes more settled.

The Legislative Assembly.

The Legislative Assembly will meet at 3 p.m. to-day. His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor will be present when the Assembly comes together; but will retire until the work of electing a Speaker shall have been accomplished. After the Speaker shall have taken his seat the Assembly will adjourn until Friday at 3 o'clock, when the Speech will be delivered. The hall presented a lively appearance yesterday. A large number of workmen were engaged in putting on the finishing touches. The desks (which are very handsome and were made by Messrs Muirhead & Bruce) will be arranged in semicircles, with a broad aisle in the centre. The hall is carpeted with Brussels, with rope matting at the side. The Committe Rooms and Library are carpeted. The reporter's gallery (which seems to be placed rather high) projects several feet beyond the strangers' gallery, which retains its original position. Above the strangers' gallery is looped a green baize curtain which extends from side to side of the hall. Light will be furnished by coal oil lamps suspended in chandeliers from the ceiling. The arrangements are very neat and have not cost a large sum to perfect.

The Lillooet Election.

R. P. Ritche, Esq, of Canoe Creek, writes to say that he was not the author of a telegram which appeared in THE BRITISH COLONIST of the 1st November last, to the following effect;

"Ritche of Canoe Creek sent a message to T. B. Humphreys with the following telegram: "Name your man and let me know who he is. He shall have all the votes within a radius of 30 miles from here. I command the whole crowd."

Mr Ritche denies in very emphatic language that he sent the message, but adds that he is not surprised that it should have been attributed to him. The many friends of Mr Ritche throughout this Province scarcely required this denial to convince them of the absurdity of the report.

A TOUCHING STORY FROM ALASKA.—A Sunday-school superintendent out in Alaska treated his entire charge to a sleigh ride. There were just forty-one of the cherubs and a six-horse sleigh. On their way home they were beset by a pack of ferocious wolves. Cool and collected in that hour of fearful trial, the heroic superintendent saw at a glance that he must soon be overtaken. In an instant his quick mind grasped the only chance of escape. Seizing the child that always sung "I Want to be an Angel" two notes too high, he flung it to the rapacious horde. It stayed their onward rush for a moment. Next came the urchin who never brought any pennies to the heathen. And so on swept the pursued and pursuers until the last infant was exhausted. But the brave fellow had economized his material nobly. And besides, a whole Sunday-school slows off wolves perceptibly. We have always noticed this. In another moment the sleigh dashed into the village, and the grand, noble, true-hearted man knew that he was saved.

VALENTINES.—A large number of valentines were sent yesterday. Owing to the cheap postage the number of these missives deposited in the postoffice was very great. Some gushing lovelorn damsel sent one of our good looking printers the picture of a bleeding heart skewered all over with arrows! The young gentleman begs us to say for the lady's information that if the heart is her own and she should survive the skewering operation, she may be said to have made a (n)arrow escape.

FROM NANAIMO.—The steamer Emma returned from Nanaimo yesterday with a cargo of coal for Brodrick & Co. The propeller Gussie Telfair from Portland, had arrived on her way to Sitka.

KOOTENAY WRITS.—Government, by an Extraordinary Gazette, has extended the time for the returns of the Kootenay writs to the 15th day of March next.

ASH WEDNESDAY. — Yesterday being Ash Wednesday, divine service was held at the Episcopal and Catholic churches.

THE schooner Alert, which left in tow of H.M.S. Scout, returned to the harbor yesterday.

THE Prince Alfred is expected to leave San Francisco for Victoria to-day.

THE Enterprise will sail at 9 this a.m. for New Westminster and will return to-morrow.

EGGS are 50 cents a dozen.

IMMEDIATELY after the Chicago fire skillful men commenced making experiments in restoring defaced writing and printing on charred bonds, currency, and valuable papers. One of the greatest difficulties experienced has been to seperate papers which were rolled or folded together. Cinders are brittle, and close rolls of them are likely to crumble into pieces before they can be separated. In view of this fact, some valuable directions are given by the Chicago newspapers in regard to the arrangement of papers in safes, and the treatment of them after a fire occured. These directions, in brief are as follows:—First, before the fire. —Have a separate compartment in your safe large enough to spread out the papers at full size. Pack them in tight. Keep bills in packages similar to those in banks, never rolling or folding them up. Second, after the fire.—Let your safe alone till it cools off thoroughly, and then never break it open. Pry it open with levers, jimmies, or screws. Never open it on a windy day, as many a book reduced to cinders has been blown away. When opened, take out the contents with the most possible care, preserving their position as nearly as possible. Pack them in cotton, put them in a trunk, and transport them as carefully as possible to place where they will be deciphered.

A STORY is told of a sprig of English nobility, who having failed in a competitive examination, was asked by a friend how it happened. "Oh said the rejected candidate, "it was all through a fellow who asked me questions I did not expect." "What did he examine you on?" "Oh, history." "Ancient or modern?" "Ancient or modern?" answerer the youth, with an air of the most intense disgust. "Oh ever so long before either; time of William the Conqueror."

"THE husband who behaves unkindly to his wife deserves to have his house burnt over his head," said a domestic tyrant to a lady who knew all about him. "Then you ought to keep yours fully insured," was the lady's retort.

The Dead Alive.

A WOMAN SLAYS A BURGLAR WHO IS IDENTIFIED AS HER OWN SON—THE SON RETURNS HOME ALIVE AND WELL.

Mrs Janet Mowbray and her four sons lived in 1828 at Harwick Hall in the county of Durham, England. Mrs Mowbray was a tall, powerful woman of great energy and bravery, in her fifty-fourth year. Her sons were aged respectively, thirty-four, twenty-seven twenty-four, and twenty one. Her husband had been dead many years. Her two eldest sons were married, and their wives and families lived with her. The youngest, George, was wild and dissipated, and had given his mother much trouble. He was deeply in debt, and had been repeatedly threatened with arrest. Mrs Mowbray was wealthy and kept in her bed-room, beside a quantity of valuable plate, a large sum of money.

On Christmas Eve Mrs. Mowbray's son and daughter-in-law paid a visit to the residence of a relative, Mr Chaker, of Chatershaugh. The domestics, relieved from duty, were in their own portion of the dwelling, enjoying the festivities of the season. The watchman, who was ordinarily on duty in the kitchen garden, took a hasty survey of his beat, and joined the revelers in the kitchen.

On Christmas night they were to have a gathering of friends and neighbors, and Mrs. Mowbray began to consider the arrangements necessary. She would require the old punch-bowl, and the labels and goblets, which she kept in the closet of her bed-room. She would go and get them at once. She went accordingly, and entering the closet, took out the silver and laid it on a shelf, ready for removal next morning. At the same time she took out a large, old-fashioned carving-knife and fork of quaint pattern and deposited them also on the shelf. She then returned to the parlor. After sitting and musing for some time she took up the Bible and fumbled for her spectacles. She could not find them, and at length remembered that she had left them on the shelf in the closet. She at once returned for them. Entering her bed-room she placed the candle on the dressing-table, and lighted a small lamp with which she entered the closet.

THE FACE IN THE WINDOW.

As she took the first step inside the closet she heard the sound of some one breathing heavily. She looked up, and saw right before her the face of a man. She was a brave, resolute woman. She advanced a step and observed that the man's head, body and arms were through the small window at the end, as though in the act of wriggling himself through the opening. In the man's right hand was a pistol, and his left had hold of a shelf which ran along the side of the closet. The man raised his pistol and fired. Mrs Mowbray in an instant seized the huge carving knife which lay on the shelf and advanced toward the ruffian. He was struggling to withdraw himself from the window. His hands were on the sill and his head somewhat raised, leaving his throat exposed.

MRS. MOWBRAY KILLS A BURGLAR.

Being unable to work himself out of the aperture, he raised the pistol as if to hurl it at Mrs. Mowbray. The courageous old lady made one step forward, and slashed the keen blade across the man's throat, laying it open from ear to ear. She then calmly retired, closed the closet door, blew out the lamp, and taking up her candle retired to the parlor, first having satisfied herself that not a drop of blood had stained her hands or dress.

THE RETURN HOME.

Half an hour after midnight her children returned home. They found their mother seated by the fire serenely reading the Bible. They greeted her affectionately, and prepared to retire for the night. Mrs Mowbray said:

'Boys, remain behind a little. I wish to speak to you. You, my dear daughters, can retire.'

When she was alone with her children she said with dignity and calmness!

'My children, I have killed a man. You will find his body fast in the small window of the closet off my bedroom,'

Her sons stared at her in amazement. They at first imagined that she must be laboring under some mental disorder. But when she related to them plainly and rationally, and in her own straightforward, terse fashion, the story as just told, they saw that she was telling them a simple fact.

'Go,' said she 'and make what arrangements you please. I will wait here, and you can tell me what course it is best to pursue in this matter.'

AN AWFUL DISCOVERY.

The sons took lights and went to their mother's room. They opened the closet door, and there sure enough was the body of a man hanging half through the window. The floor was a pool of blood. With difficulty the eldest son got near enough the body, without stepping in the gore, to raise the head which was drooping on the chest. He grasped the hair and lifted the head so that the light might fall upon the face. As he did so a cry of horror escaped from all:

'Great God! it is our brother George!'

'What do you say' asked Mrs Mowbray, in a voice horribly calm, from the doorway, whither she had followed her sons unperceived. 'George! what do you mean?'

The eldest son dropped the head to prevent, if possible, his mother recognizing it and all of them endeavored to explain the exclamation, and to get their mother away from the spot. It was in vain.

THE MOTHER RECOGNIZES HER SON.

'Boys,' she said in her old well known tone of authority, 'stand aside. Let me see the face of the murderer I have slain.'

With that she put her sons on one side, as though they had been mere lads, and walked through the slippery gore that lay upon the floor, up to the body. She took the candle from the unresisting grasp of her first-born, and with a hand that trembled not, lifted the head of the dead man, so that the light shone full upon it. She gazed at it steadily for half a minute; then she said gently lowering it until it rested upon the breast again:

'It is my boy George!'

DISPOSING OF THE BODY.

Mrs Mowbray was the only one in that household who remained calm and emotionless. The family were in the wildest state of sorrow. The three brothers with difficulty extricated the body from the window. The authorities were notified, and everything was kept as quiet as possible. The inquest was duly held and Mrs Mowbray was fully exonerated, and the body was tenderly prepared for burial. The real story was known to few outside the family and the authorities. It was believed by them that George, instead of going to Devonshire, had remained lurking in the neighborhood, and had planned the robbery, and if need were the murder of his mother. He knew that she would be alone on that night, and that she had a large sum of money and valuable jewels in her room. The old nurse who had held George in her arms when he first saw the light, took care of his body and prepared it for the tomb.

THE NURSE IDENTIFIES HER DARLING.

She dwelt tenderly on the familiar marks upon the limbs and face, which she knew so well, each of which had a story of youthful daring or folly connected with it. In due time the funeral took place. The corpse was laid in the family vault. Only the family and one or two relatives attended. Mrs Mowbray spent the best part of each day by the side of her dear son. She showed externally no signs of emotion. Before the lid was closed she kissed the forehead, and cut off a lock of the hair. The day after the burial she gave directions to her eldest son to pay all the dead man's debts, which was done at once as far as known. Gloom settled over the hall. The wing of the building in which the tragedy occurred was closed up, and Mrs. Mobray removed to a bedroom upstairs.

THE ASTOUNDING SEQUEL.

On the fifth day after the funeral, a post-chaise drove up to the door of Harwick Hall, and from it stepped forth George Mowbray, looking better than he had looked for many a long day before he left home. The servant who opened the hall door, started back and almost dropped with fright. His exclamations caught the ears of Mrs Mowbray and her sons, who hastened back into the entrance hall, only in turn to be dumbfounded. George was as much astounded as any of them, and gazed from one to the other, perfectly lost in bewildered surprise. There was no doubt about it. George Mowbray, whom every-body believed was dead, and in his grave, was living and before them.

GEORGE ASTONISHED IN TURN.

"Mother," said George, advancing toward her, "what is the matter? My return is easily accounted for. On reaching Tawvale, I found that my uncle's family had been unexpectedly summoned to London as my eldest cousin, Sir John Grey's wife, was thought to be dying. I took a night's repose, and then started home again; and here I am!"

Mrs Mowbray walked up to him, gazed into his face, and then, without a word, folded him in her passionate embrace. Each of his brothers grasped his hands, and kissed him as they had been wont to do when he was a boy and the pet of the family. The old nurse aroused from her noon-day slumber, embraced and wept over him; and the servants gathered round, with wet eyes and congratulatory exclamations.

All this time George knew nothing of the true reason for this singular reception. Soon, however, the mystery was explained to him. The effect upon him cannot be described.

MRS. MOWBRAY'S VICTIM.

Measures were immediately taken to have the body of the man who had been buried as George Mowbray disinterred. This was soon done, and, as the living George stood beside the dead man, the resemblance was seen to be most extraordinary. The marks on the face and hands corresponded with those on George's. The scars on the legs were similar also; and the hair, eye-brows and finger-nails were marvelously alike. Who the dead man was was never ascertained. After George's return, however, inquiries were made such as it was never deemed needful to make so long as the dead man was supposed to be Mrs. Mowbray's youngest son.

FURTHER DISCLOSURES.

These inquiries led to to the discovery that the day before the tragedy three men, supposed to be from London, took up their quarters at an inn in a neighboring village, one of whom the landlord thought he recognized as having been in Mrs Mowbray's service as groom. The footsteps of three persons were also discovered in the garden, and some time afterwards a rope ladder and a trough, which had apparently been used to lay upon the spikes at the top of the garden wall, were descried in the neighboring copse. But the name of the dead man was never discovered.

A large man on the train from Albany to Boston, who filled a whole seat and had to dodge the car lamps, excited considerable curiosity among the passengers, and a caucus in one end of the car resulted in the choice of a young man of acknowledged assurance to interview the giant and ascertain his weight, height, nationality, &c. After several questions, which were carefully evaded by his hugeness, the dialogue closed as follows: 'I think I have met you before, sir; are you from San Francisco?' 'No, oh no,' replied the gigantic passenger, 'I am a farmer out West, where we hatch our own eggs and raise our own chickens.' Exit small man.

A young man in the habit of staying out late was reprimanded severely and often by his father. At the same time he was inventing excuse after excuse His last excuse was to place the numbers 10 and 11 on each side of the door and when he was asked what time he came in the night before he said bravely 'between 10 and 11.' I know not how long the excuse lasted, but the father was satisfied.

A few years ago a little fellow was taken by his father to a carpenter to be bound apprentice to him after the fashion of the times. In settleing the business, the master, who was one of the stiff kind, observed: 'Well, boy, I suppose you can eat most anything, can't you? I always make my boys live on what they don't like.' 'I love everything but mince-pie and apple-pie, was the boy's instant reply.

THE celebrated Dr Doddridge once wrote thus to a lady whom he afterwards married:—"You have made a greater advance upon my heart in a few hours than I intended to allow you in as many weeks; indeed you have possessed yourself of so much in it that, unless you consent to be a tenant for life, our parting will be exceedingly troublesome, and it will be a long while before I shall get it into repair again."

A COUNTRYMAN, fresh from the magnificent woods and rough clearings of the far west, was one day visiting the owner of a beautiful seat in Brooklyn; and, walking with him through a little grove, out of which all the underbrush had been cleared, paths had been nicely cut and graveled, and the rocks covered with woodbine, suddenly stopped, and admiring the beauty of the scene, lifted up his hands and exclaimed, "That I like! this is nature with her hair combed."

A foolish Milwaukie man named Markham, would put his powder can under the seat of boat when he went out duck shooting. Still he killed one duck, by swooping down on him out of the upper air.

All the Year Round.

And in all parts of the world, the elements of disease are present in the air, the soil and the water, in a greater or less degree, and therefore the Great Vegetable Antidote to these invisible enemies of health Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is invaluable as a household medicine at all seasons and in every latitude. At no period of the year is a regulating and corrective medicine more needed than toward the close of winter, when the sun and rain are beginning to break up the winter blockade, and from the softening soil arises that terrible miasma which weighs like an incumbus upon the vital machinery, and depresses the animal spirits. It is then that the seeds of intermittant and remittant fevers, of rheumatism and rheumatic gout, of obstinate stomach complaints, of disorders of the liver and bowels, and a whole host of pulmonary and nervous complaints are sown.

The best, the surest way to prevent this disastrous seeding is to invigorate and refresh the system with a course of the Bitters. If this precaution be taken now, there will be no danger of the miasmatic germs taking root in the fluids and tissues of the body, and bringing forth terrible fruit in the spring. Now is the time for prevention. Remember that vigor is the only safeguard against the virus of disease, and that Hostetter's Bitters is the purest, the surest, the most powerful and perfect invigorant ever administered, either as protective medicine or a remedy. A change of season approaches which almost always proves more or less disastrous to persons of a weak nervous organization. Brace up at once with the leading Tonic of the age. Purge from the blood all morbid matter, strengthen the nerves, and regulate and purify the secretions with Vegetable Elixir, which combines the juices of the finest medicinal roots herbs and barks, with the most wholesome of all diffusive stimulants.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOE STORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY & COLOR

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment and hereditary predisposition all turn the hair gray; either of them diseases it to fall off prematurely; the effect is unsightly and unpleasant to behold. Dr Ayer's consummate skill has produced an antidote for these deformities which has won gratitude for him from multitudes of women and men His HAIR VIGOR sometimes reproduces lost hair and always stores to faded and gray hair its natural color, with the gloss and fire bloom of youth, the comparatively few bald and gray heads that we now see, are those who have not yet discovered the virtues of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR for renewing the hair The fresh and youthful hair we see on older heads is often the product of his art If you are disfigured or made old, austere and ugly, by gray hair, restore its youthful color and with it your features to their original softness and agreeable expression

As an elegant dressing for beautifying the Hair it has no superior,

Card of Thanks to Dr Choug.

AFTER BEING TREATED FIVE MONTHS by a white doctor, and spending nearly $300, I was worse than when I first went to him. I had quite despaired of being relieved when I read Dr Choug's card in THE COLONIST. I plead myself under his care and in NINE DAYS I was a well man. I write this card to discharge a debt of gratitude I owe to Dr Choug, which charge, I may also say, was reasonable. My complaint was neuralgia WILLIAM McCORMICK.
